

A Prayer for Those Who Yearn

Creating God
as you wrestled chaos into order may my wrestlings honor you reveal the shadowy places in my life and use them to convict to clarify your purpose and call me back to you

Liberating God
as you dared to come close may i draw near to strangers break down the walls i've constructed and use me to listen first and well to bridge the gap between and call us back to you

Renewing God
as you daily move among us may all creation be restored sustain the land and air and seas and use us to salvage what has been destroyed to plant in the hope that all will be made new

—Poem by Rev. Audrey Edewaard, Third CRC (Kalamazoo, MI)

Artwork by 15-year old Lorelai Reiffer from Silver Spring CRC (Silver Spring, MD). See artist's statement on the reverse side.

Nothing in this trinity is before or after, nothing is greater or smaller; in their entirety the three persons are coeternal and coequal with each other.

So in everything, as was said earlier, we must worship their trinity in their unity and their unity in their trinity.

-From the Athanasian Creed

Trinity Sunday celebrates the Christian doctrine of the Trinity, the three Persons of God: the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit.

It is evident then that the Father is not the Son and that the Son is not the Father, and that likewise the Holy Spirit is neither the Father nor the Son.

Nevertheless. these persons, thus distinct. are neither divided nor fused or mixed together."

-From the Belgic Confession, Article 8

Cover artwork by 15-year old Lorelai Reiffer. "If I could ask God a question about the Trinity, I think I would ask him how it's possible for three separate beings to also be one, because I think it's a question that only God could really answer in its entirety. In my art, I tried to represent each member of the Trinity, as well as how they're all one. I chose the heavens to represent The Father, the cross for The Son, and the dove for The Holy Spirit. Then, to tie them all together, I chose the Tree of Life. I also chose to show the sun coming down from the sky in distinct beams to allude to a stained glass window. When people see my artwork, I hope they are drawn to ask their own questions about the Trinity."
